PEOPLE OF RUSSIA
SUFFERING BLUES

Brunswick, Ger.—August Merges, a German communist leader who has just returned from Moscow, says that "bolshievism as practiced in Russia is not Stalinism. Pure, unadulterated communism. The cost of living there is excessively high, paper money is wiped out with paper money and people generally have the blues."

Merges, a little hunchbacked journeyman tailor, who sang the communist hymn in Brunswick in 1912, warns his comrades against settling in Russia.

"Politics in Russia are controlled by the communist party, which counts 800,000 members, several hundred thousands of whom are office seekers and political hangers-on who are not to be trusted," Merges declares in an address on his Russian discoveries.

He declared that the Russian system was not suited to Germany, because its rigid centralization combined with a tedious bureaucracy, and its initiation of capitalistic methods. He told the Moscow Reds, he said, that the German communists did not propose to take orders from them.

GIRL IS KILLED IN
18-FOOT PLUNGE
IN NEW BUILDING

ed employment later, with the Lewis Knitting works. It was not until the last few days that she had been employed at the Parker Pen company. Ever since coming to Janesville the young woman had lived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Briggs, 115 Court street, with whom she both roomed and boarded.

Was Sweet Girl
"I feel as if she were my own child," said Mrs. Briggs this morning. "She was a very sweet girl, never causing me one bit of worry. She never stayed out late at night and never failed to tell me where she was going. I never saw a girl with a more happy disposition. Marie always had a smile for everyone and whenever she went she made friends."

Miss Hart was the youngest of two daughters, the other being married and away from her parents' home. Mrs. Briggs stated that the girl had only a week ago Wednesday returned from home, where she had spent a three weeks vacation.

"It was only a few days ago that Marie told me of her engagement to Jack Lynn, her companion in the tragedy," said Mrs. Briggs. "I knew the young man only slightly, but he also told me of the engagement and that the wedding was to take place at Christmas time."

Mr. Briggs was among the first to arrive at the scene of the disaster, having been summoned by Mary, who hurriedly told the story of the accident.

"She can't be hurt badly for she fell on me and I do not think she is injured," he said to have kept repeating. He thought his fiancée had merely fainted. Young Lynn, who is a lineman by trade, was in the navy for over six years.

Rosebud Work Difficult
Mr. Briggs was the first to enter the hole, using a match to light up the 18 foot depth. Some of the bystanders who had by that time obtained flash lights, ropes and ladders, suggested that rope be tied in this manner. None of the leaders was long enough to reach the bottom of the hole, so the young woman was not removed until Dr. Wayne A. Mann came with a stretcher and carried her through the building and then through the side window.

"When I first saw Marie, I knew that she was seriously hurt," said Mrs. Briggs. "She was lying face down with her arms covering her eyes, and she was moaning dreadfully. She is very small. Jean, the ladders I had brought, I could not have carried her out," he said.

WHERE ACCIDENT OCCURRED:
LOCATION OF COAL HOLE
On the Division side of the new Parker Pen building is an ornate double entrance. To the east is the garage or coal chute with a turn table in the floor. On Saturday there was some debris around the entrance. In the far corner from the entrance, to the left, is the coal chute.

It is the design that coal brought in by truck may be dumped here for the boiler. The door and short flight of steps leading to the boiler room is straight ahead of the garage entrance. Had the couple gone that direction, there would have only been a short fall. But the coal shaft is 18 feet deep and at the top is 31x31 inches.

Today it is covered with nailed planks. Saturday night it was open. It was into the narrow shaft that the couple plunged, one to his hurt and the girl to her death.

MODERN DRESSES
SEVERELY CRITICIZED

San Juan.—Present styles of dress and the newer dances are severely criticized as immodest and degrading by the Rt. Rev. William A. Jones, bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Porto Rico, who has issued a warning to both priests and parishioners against their demoralizing influences.

Certain of the modern dances are "mockery to shame and in reality are nothing more than a bait to sensuality," in the opinion of the bishop, while the style of the day in women's dresses, he warns, should not be used to "exhibit nakedness."

Priests are advised that they may not organize dances for church benefits, according to instructions from the Pope, while they may not attend festivals organized by lay members of their congregations where dancing is indulged in.

The Bishop gives his views on dress and dancing in an ecclesiastical letter addressed to both priests and members of the church in this diocese and published in the official church bulletin.

Dancer, Caught in Legal Net, to Hurry Abroad, Marry Again

New York.—Deprived of her marital status as a result of an unforeseen legal complication, Helen Moller, noted Greek dancer, is preparing to fly to the bedside of the man whose name the law's technicalities has taken away from her in this matter.

Miss Moller, still beautiful, in spite of the sufferings of the past months, expects to be remarried by Robert A. Poole, a wealthy Englishman. He is gravely ill in a British sanatorium.

Mr. Poole and I will be remarried as soon as possible," said Miss Moller in her only public utterance since the first Mrs. Poole began her divorce suit, the final decree of which was granted by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins at Nyack last week.

Two Innocent Victims
"Every one has been most kind," continued the blond-haired disciple of Greek choreographic art, "I was one of those complications that I suppose are bound to occur, a flaw in the service of papers in Mrs. Poole's original divorce suit brought years before Mr. Poole came into my life."

"Although Mr. Poole and I have been innocent all the time, I am glad the dilemma has been particularly solved. All that remains is our remarriage."

"This is not so simple a matter as it seems, for Mr. Poole is still very ill. He is in a nursing home near London, and when this matter first came up was so sick that his life was despaired of. I should have gone to him at once, but I was ill also and I had to remain here with my infant son, Robert A. Poole, Jr."

"In the last few days I have received advice that Mr. Poole is much better and perhaps will be able to leave for America soon. If he is unable to come I shall probably go to England, and we shall be married there. I am leaving details in the hands of my attorney."

No Cable Marriage
"Mr. Poole has been desperately ill. A new serum is being tried now, and we are very hopeful."

"Have you considered the possibility of being married by cable?" "No," was the serious reply. "We want to be together when it happens in some way he got word of his first wife's action and it had a very bad effect on him. Fortunately, though, the clouds are clearing."

"I think everyone realizes that Mr. Poole and I were innocent."

On the same day, Miss Moller has built a wonderful out-door "Sylvan Temple of Dancing."

Here, until her recent illness, she taught "Greek" and "Latin" city "temple" is at Madison avenue and Sixty-fifth street. Unless she goes to England soon, she said, she will resume her work in the city about October 1.

AMID THE LABOR UNREST

"The late William Dean Howells," said a publisher, "was an incurable optimist."

"I relied on Mr. Howells one day not very long ago, and as I lit a cigarette I complained about the quality of the matches."

"This complaint brought out Mr. Howells' optimism beautifully. His eyes twinkled and he said:

"Let us be grateful, in days like these, for something that doesn't strike."

MOVIES TAKE WELL WITH LOCAL BAPTISTS

Moving pictures of an uplifting order have taken a firm hold on the congregation of the First Baptist church here. Judging from comments passed Sunday night after the showing for the second time of motion pictures at that church under the ministry of Rev. R. G. Pierson, the pastor, Sunday night's films featured a character study, "The Bulwark," bringing out the victory of faith over cowardice. The main auditorium of the edifice was crowded.

A reel of travel pictures in Morocco, put out by the extension division of the University of Wisconsin, were also shown. The minister preached a short sermon following the pictures, emphasizing his belief in the need for strong men, mentally and physically, and which he termed is an age of unrest and danger.

The DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

CECIL FOLLOWS LINDSEY TO PARIS.

Thursday—Cecil arrived today, and I managed to get out with him—at least I started out with him—and explained to him the situation. He was very kind and understanding, and I just had to wonder round that place to my heart's content, no matter what happened.

Aunt Cecilia looked a bit worried when I told her of my plans for meeting Cecil, but then she said, after a few moments' hard thinking, "you are old enough now to know what you are doing, Lindy dear." And in the end I had my way, and Cecil and her lover left me promising to pick me up again the following round 9 o'clock in the evening, for I was to dine with Cecil.

The long sunny day lay before me, and when I saw Cecil's black eyes laughing up into mine, over the statue of "Le Baiser" some few moments later, I felt like hugging him—and so did he. I knew I was standing in the arms of the man I had longed for in early September! It was too good to be true.

What fun it was finding all our old loves on the various walks, standing in hushed fervor before each and every favorite, and then beginning all over again.

Never even felt the pangs of hunger until past 6 o'clock, and then the gardeners smiled at us so temptingly, when we got outside, that we couldn't move on for the love of looking and walking in and about the grounds. At 7:30 we found ourselves hungrily seated in the Cafe Du Mesnil, not far from the heart of the Quarter, and I was excited at this thought to be able to give a thought to food, for the menu card held out to me by the smiling waiter, who evidently saw this Paris. And how arrival to all of his Paris. And how kind they are to strangers in this little city of Paris. We ordered and ate, and each mouthful seemed like so much manna to us both. The glass of sparkling wine that Cecil poured out for me, and that I toasted the whole world with, seemed truly like nothing less than the great nectar of the gods. Our glasses of Love, Joy, Youth and Art. Voila!

I could hardly keep my feet still under the table—for they were fairly itching to explore and never stop. Yet there were so many places that I longed to see right away that I couldn't for the world have seen which one I wanted to see first. It's persistent.

After we had finished the best lunch I had ever eaten, we wandered out into the sunlight again, and from the Du Mesnil we turned our steps into the Boule Mich, and walked along its banks for some time looking in at all the small shops and art stores on the way.

Arrived at the Boulevard Montparnasse, dear to the heart of all artists, Cecil stopped, and then took me into one of his favorite cafes. The cafe was in the Latin quarter, and it was also where the young writers gathered and wrote their verse, and scribbled over the poetry of the future. It is also where Ernest Dowdure wrote his immortal lines, so well known to us all:

"I have been faithful in thee, Cynara, my fashion."

Yes, right on the top of one of these tables did he improvise not only his, but many others. I sat and watched the thought of him, and the thought of the habits stroll in, sit down at their particular tables, and from the particular table, either on paper or on the tops of the marble tables—anywhere. What cared they?

But I am so tired now from it all that I can write no more—and tomorrow tomorrow is a new day.

Clothes for the More Formal Hours

The more formal hours of the day require very different clothes from the prevailing sports and tailored things. This season women are paying more attention to their formal costumes and the reason may be that so many charming formal costumes are being designed. At the right is a very simple and charming frock suitable for formal affairs of the afternoon and early dinners. It is fashioned of white light blue chambray with beading in blue and gold covering the whole skirt. Short sleeves and a surplice blouse mark the bodice. The little feather touch makes a pretty popping for the frock.

In the center is a pretty velvet costume. The hat is a dainty velvet and matches the frock which is made on straight simple lines and trimmed with gold thread. This outfit should grace an afternoon tea, an evening dinner in a hotel or the formal call.

The large picture hat with the deep chianti lace veil falling gracefully over the brow is an exquisite model for evening and very formal occasions. It makes a lovely frame for the pretty face being fashioned of black velvet faced with pink. Pink silk roses decorate the crown. Every woman who has a formal wardrobe will want at least one of these pretty models for it.

GOOD CORN RECIPES
Roast Corn—Scrape the kernels off the cob and boil for about 20 minutes in two quarts of water to which one cup of milk and one teaspoon of salt have been added. Drain, place in a buttered dish and bake until brown. Bake every few minutes with melted butter.

Corn Pudding—Two cups of corn, two eggs, one tablespoon of butter, two cups of milk, one teaspoon of salt, paprika. Chop the corn, add the beaten eggs and butter and milk with seasoning. Pour into a greased baking dish and bake until light brown.

A delicious vegetable combination is made by using absolutely fresh corn and fresh lima beans in the succotash mixture. If the very best ingredients are used this is a rich and substantial dish.

Fresh Succotash—One cup of fresh corn, one cup of fresh lima beans, two tablespoons of butter, one cup of top milk, salt, black pepper, onion and beans and heat; finally add the milk and seasoning. Heat thoroughly, but don't allow to boil.

Cold Corn Salad—Four tomatoes, one cup of cooked corn, two eggs, one cup of milk, one tablespoon of flour, one tablespoon of oil. Mix the corn with lightly beaten eggs, add the tomato pulp and the flour, which is made up into a paste by gradually rubbing with milk. Bake for about 20 minutes, then set aside to cool. Serve chilled on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise or French dressing.

Corn Fritters—Two cups of cooked corn, one-half cup of cracker crumbs, one cup of milk, one beaten egg, one tablespoon of flour, one teaspoon of baking powder, one teaspoon of salt. Chop the corn, with with oil, in a spoon into deep, hot fat. Fry until brown, turning on both sides.

DISCOVERIES

Garden-Grown Long-Handled Dust-ers—Especially good for rough plastered walls and ceilings. In the fall, after the sunflower stalks are quite dry, cut the largest round and tapered end, then add a padding of newspaper and tie over the end. Cut more newspaper into a fringe an inch wide, and sew on over pad, allowing it to fall in all directions. It proves very good and very light to handle, and this paper duster can be removed when necessary.

Chocolate Stains—Borax and cold water will remove chocolate stains.

Old Shades—When renewing window shades save the old ones. Soak over night in cold water, after tearing off roller and taking out stick. Then send to the laundry and they will come back big tops of soft muslin. Two saved together with a drawing string in the top make an excellent bag for coal or gown. Also good for dusts and many household uses.

Cleaning Windows—First remove all the spots with hot, soapy water. Then dampen a cloth in vinegar and rub over the panes. Polish with a dry cloth or piece of paper. This is done easily and quickly.

Blackwood—John Harms, 7 miles from here, is lying at the point of death as the result of an automobile collision.

SHARON
(By Gazette Correspondent.)
Sharone—The Sharon friends of Miss Josephine Straka were shocked to hear of her sudden death, Friday, at Janesville, where she had gone for the removal of her tonsils.—Mrs. Charlotte Weshong and Rupert Atkinson, both of this village, were married Thursday at Woodstock and after a short wedding trip will go to housekeeping in the Emery Lowell house.—The Misses Emma Cookerill, Marion Milne, Grace Walcott, Marcia Nobles, Gladys Gile, Laura Denmore and Gretchen Hoard, who attend the Whitewater normal, came home Friday night for an over Sunday visit.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Spear were Beloit visitors Friday.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmer, Fontana, spent Friday afternoon in town.—Mrs. Florence Chester and daughter, Viola, were Harvard visitors Friday.—A large crowd attended the Aid social given at the M. E. church on Friday afternoon. The time was spent in a social way after which refreshments were served by Mesdames Warren, H. P. Larsen, F. Gile, Ella Radaway and Ella Horn.—Mrs. Harvey Hutchinson spent Friday in Janesville.—Mrs. Clifford Newman spent Thursday and Friday in Harvard visiting her mother, Mrs. Craig.—Mrs. Duely, visiting her friend, Mrs. Rob Brown and husband.—Vernon Cookerill was a business visitor in Whitewater, Friday.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES
A red-hot stove is a needless waste of fuel.
To prevent mildew on books spray with oil of lavender.
Stings from nettles can be cured by rubbing with sage leaves.
A useful thing to have in a kitchen is a table of weights and measures.
A small set of steps will make it easier to get things on the top shelves.
Since hot water is absorbed more quickly than cold, if clothes have but little time to steam before ironing, apply hot water with a whisk broom. Any article that is to be dried—such as croquettes, chops or fish—is much better "dried" and more moist if dipped in bread instead of cracker crumbs.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a boy who has a girl friend 21 years old. At present she is lying out of town and under the circumstances I should like to know what I can do for her birthday which comes this month.

Also, I should like your opinion on this: My brother, who is 28, is married to a woman about 25. My opinion was that she was too old for him, but he says that leaving out the fact that he loves her she was without washing her face first, inferring of course that she did not use powder.

I should like to comment on opinion expressed in your column. The writer stated that she was a married woman and was a little bit of a flirt. While our conceit is not to be doubted, still it is a certain type of man-hunter who makes a man's life a misery. I should not have to accept any girl who comes along. Yet the paint and powder, which in the eyes of the world-white girls, attracts the so-called "creeps."

AS YOU WERE.

Send the girl a broken heart. It is not your place to interfere with your brother's choice of a wife. It is only natural, however, that you should consider her too old for your brother. I quite agree with you.

In regard to silly men and pinched women, the blame cannot be placed on either side, both are at fault and have a false conception of what is worth while.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 18 years of age and in love with a boy two years my senior. I love him and want to know how to make him love me.

Love cannot be forced. You might just as well give up the thought of "making" the boy care for you. Unless he takes a fancy to you of his own free will your efforts will avail nothing. It is not the girl's place to run after the man.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What is the cause when the white of the eye turns yellow, and could you please advise some remedy?

DOUBTFUL BLONDE.
Various disorders will make the whites of the eyes yellow. Go to a physician at once, because your trouble may be of a serious nature.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Some time ago I noticed a skin lotion for rough, red hands. I had my druggist prepare the same for me, and I would like to have some more prepared but cannot remember what it contained. Would you kindly print it in "EVELYN N. N."

One ounce of glycerin, two ounces of bay rum, 20 drops of carbolic acid, enough perfume to give it a pleasant odor.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: When going to a theater with a young man, who should go down the aisle first, the man or the girl?

GERTRUDE.
The man should precede the girl down the aisle. Then he should step aside and let her get into her seat first.

"Blowin' Bubbles": I believe you are safe in letting your love run its course. You might feel better satisfied if you talked the matter over with your family physician.
